

The Speed Of Life

Words and Music: Graeme Connors

Happy Birthday Me! can it really be fifty-five years today I think someone has got it wrong I'm nowhere near that age but either way it's OK I'm in a place I like happy to be here with you travelling at the speed of life

I don't have time to press rewind and go back through the years I'm far too busy making history collecting souvenirs though considering how long I've been here I should say something wise ah don't look back just stay on track travelling at the speed of life

I maybe past the half way mark In this human race or maybe I'm just entering my prime knowing where the circle starts doesn't really help my case if I don't know when I'll cross the finish line

Now some folks say on this special day my wishes all come true well let me put that to the test and make a wish for you when they cut my birthday cake may you have the biggest slice and don't forget to savour it travelling at the speed of life

before we go our separate ways one last word of advice to avoid the rush better take the bus travelling at the speed of life
